Death Follows In Wake of Furlong Tornado in Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 25.—The total number of dead at Moundville as a result of the tornado is 23, six of whom are white. The number of wounded is estimated at 65, of whom about a dozen are expected to die. Relief measures are being taken by the citizens of Tuscaloosa under the leadership of General W. W. Brandon, adjutant general of Alabama. Pupils from the female colleges at Tuscaloosa are at Moundville, serving food to the destitute and aiding the injured.

Every business in the village with the exception of a small drug store, was completely destroyed. The tornado struck the city from the southwest and moved a patch a quarter of a mile wide through the town. Bedding, carpets and wearing apparel are scattered for a distance of 10 miles through what was a forest, but which is now as clear as if it had been cut by the woodman's ax. Freight cars were torn to splinters, the trucks from them being hurled hundreds of feet from the track. The depot, the hotel, warehouses, gin, 30 homes and storehouses were completely destroyed. Where they stood it is impossible to find even the pillars on which these structures rested.

Bales of cotton which were stored in warehouses were torn to atoms, the fragments of that lodging in trees, making it appear as though that section had been visited by a snowstorm. Heavy iron safes, the doors of which in some instances were torn from their hinges, were carried away by the force of the wind.

A young clerk employed by W. P. Puffer, hearing the terrible roaring of the storm, let himself into a well in the center of the store. He had no sooner found his place of safety when the store was completely demolished. He was drawn out unharmed.

JURY HOLDS HARRISON.

Mayor of Chicago to Answer With Others For Inquests Horror.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—After hearing evidence for three weeks relative to the inquests theater horror and the conditions existing about that playhouse at the time of the disaster, the coroner's jury has returned a verdict.

The following are held to await the action of the grand jury: Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago; J. J. Harrison, proprietor in part and manager of the theater; George Williams, building commissioner of the city; Edward Laughlin, building inspector under Williams; William Salter, fireman in the theater; James E. Cummings, stage carpenter; William Melton, who had charge of the light that caused the fire.

In addition to Mayor Harrison, the verdict reads as follows: "We hold Carter H. Harrison, as mayor of the city of Chicago, responsible, as he has shown a lamentable lack of force, and for his efforts to escape responsibility, evidenced by the testimony of Building Commissioner Williams and Fire Marshal Melton. As heads of departments under the said Carter H. Harrison following this weak course has given Chicago inefficient service, which makes such calamities as the inquests theater horror a menace until the public service is purged of incompetents."

MINERS ARE TRAPPED.

Explosion Locks Two Hundred In Underground Prison.

ALL ARE BELIEVED TO BE DEAD

Hope For Impersonal Miners Was Abandoned When Body of Leader of Rescuers Was Brought Up, Who Had Apparently Died After Being In the Mine But a Short Time.

Pittsburg, Jan. 26.—Dr. W. B. McCullough of Cheswick, who has been in the mine for two hours, has just come to the surface and told the press representative that, in his opinion, none of the miners who were in the shaft at the time of the explosion is alive. He thinks it will be several hours before any of the bodies can be brought to the surface.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 26.—The belief that many were alive was rudely shattered when the body of Selwyn Taylor was brought to the surface. He had evidently been dead for several hours, and now hopes for the other imprisoned men have been abandoned. The rescuers are being brought out coated with ice, drenched to the skin and unable to walk. They report the dead are scattered one above the other as thick as pine needles. Water is fast pouring into the mine, covering the corpses with a shroud of ice and making the work of rescue almost impossible. After-damp is collecting in quantities.

Pittsburg, Jan. 26.—It is now believed that all of the 180 to 190 men locked in the Harwick mine at Cheswick, by a terrific explosion, are dead. Though cage after cage has gone down into the mine and come up again, but only one miner of all those that went down to work Monday morning has been brought to the surface. The rescued man is Adolph Gunia, and he is still in a semi-conscious condition at the temporary hospital at the rude schoolhouse on the hillside above the mine.

In addition to the miners who were at work when the explosion occurred it is now believed by all of the men of the rescue party, who have come up the 220-foot vertical shaft for a warming and breathing spell, that Selwyn M. Taylor, the Pittsburg mining engineer who plotted the mine and who was the first to reach the bottom after the explosion happened, is also now among the list of dead. Of those in the mine all are probably dead.

The explosion occurred at 8:20 o'clock Monday morning, and the first warning was the sudden rumble under ground, and then a sheet of flame followed up the deep shaft. Both mine cages were hurled through the tippie, 20 feet above the landing stage, and the three men on the tippie were hurled to the ground. A mule was thrown high above the shaft and fell dead on the ground. The injured men were brought to this city at once, where two of them have died since.

As soon as the rumble of the explosion and the crash at the pit mouth startled the little village, the wives and children of the men below rushed to the scene of the disaster, but to gain no encouragement. There was no way to get into the deep workings. The cages that let the men into the mines and brought them out again when the day's work was done were both demolished.

All day long there was a jam of waiting women and children about the mouth of the pit. There were calls for assistance and for surgical aid from the men in charge of the mine, but it was not until 4 o'clock in the afternoon that the first attempt at rescue was made. This was a failure, as the two men who volunteered were driven back by foul air.

There is a light in every cottage in the little hamlet above the pit mouth. There is still a crowd about the mouth of the shaft, but it will probably be hours before the full extent of the catastrophe is known.
